The body was that of a slender built woman, and has apparently been in the water for two weeks. It is supposed to be that of a woman who stopped at the Keating house with a child. THE ROYAL BABE.

Keir Hardie's Extraordinary Speech in the House.

HIS ATTACK ON ROYALTY.

A London cable says: Lord Rosebery, in the House of Lords to-day, in moving an address of congratulation to the Queen upon the birth of an heir to the Duke of York, said that there was no absolute guarantee in this world against evil. But the most important guarantee of the permanence of the actual form of government was the fact that the Queen had no fewer than three direct heirs. The Premier added that the monarchy for the lapse of centuries had assumed functions rather social than political. The Marquis of Salisbury said that he would supplement Lord Rosebery's remarks by stating that the present form of government was the only one possible in order to rally the numerous races and creeds which were under the Queen's sway. The motion was adopted.

There was an unprecedented scene in the House of Commons this evening when Sir William Harcourt, the Liberal leader, supported by Mr. A. J. Balfour, the Conservative leader, moved an address of congratulation to the Queen upon the birth of an heir to the Duke of York. The motion was about to be put when Mr. James Keir Hardie, member for one of the divisions of West Hampshire, a Democrat and Socialist, said: "I owe no allegiance to any hereditary ruler. (Oh, oh!) The motion proposes to raise the importance of an event of every day occurrence. I am delighted to learn that the child is fairly healthy. (Oh, oh!) I shall be pleased to join in the ordinary congratulations if I meet the child's parents. But when the House of Commons, representing the nation, is asked to join in congratulations, then, in the interest of the dignity of the House, I protest. There is an aspect of the question which concerns the House of Commons. A Cabinet Minister was required to be present upon this interesting occasion (referring to Mr. Henry Asquith, the Home Secretary, who, with the Archbishop of Canterbury, was required by precedent to be present at the birth of an heir to the throne). I submit that such a proceeding is not calculated to enhance the dignity of this House in the eyes of the nation." (Vehement interruptions and cries of "Order," "Rot.") "You may say 'Rot,'" continued Mr. Keir Hardie, "but if you mixed with those you represent you would find that the people view this matter in a different manner. It seems to me that some protest ought to be made in this connection. It is a matter of small concern to me whether the future ruler of this country is a genuine article or a sporting one. Because was made because the child was born in the Royal family, and the House has a right to ask what particular blessing the Royal family has conferred upon the nation that it partake in these proceedings. There is the Prince of Wales. What special blessing has he conferred upon the nation that we should rejoice with him?"

Col. Saunderson, the Orange leader, here moved that Mr. Keir Hardie be no longer heard. (Loud cheers.)

Sir William Harcourt said that he hoped Col. Saunderson would not press his motion, and Mr. Keir Hardie was allowed to continue. He added: "I know nothing in the career of his Royal Highness which commends itself especially to me. (Loud interruptions. The House is asked to rejoice because a child is born. But up to the present there are no means of knowing his qualifications to reign over this great Empire. It is strange that people who have so much to say about the hereditary element in another place should be so willing to endorse it in this particular instance. The principle is the same in both cases. This child will be surrounded by sycophants and flatterers, and will be taught to believe himself superior to creation. In due course of time he will found the world with grants of morganatic marriages in his train." (Vociferous cries of dissent.)

Mr. Keir Hardie concluded his remarks as follows: "As the House has not found time to vote condolence with the widows, orphans, and other victims of suffering from the terrible colliery calamity in Wales, I protest against the present motion."

The motion was then put, Mr. Keir Hardie alone protested, and it was adopted amid loud and prolonged cheering.

The budget discussion was then resumed, but most of the members went into the lobbies, where they discussed in an animated manner the occurrence.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Yesterday morning about nine o'clock Richard Langlois, a married man, aged 50, met with a terrible accident at Fletcher's planing mills, Yonge street, Toronto. Langlois was putting a belt on a pulley, when by some means his left arm became caught in the machinery. Before the engine could be stopped he was drawn up to the ceiling, and his left arm crushed almost to a pulp between the pulley and the beams. His left thigh was also badly crushed. The unfortunate man was removed in the ambulance to St. Michael's hospital, where the injured arm was amputated. At an early hour this morning Langlois was reported as doing well.

SUMMER EMERGENCIES.

Just What to do in Cases of Sunstroke and Drowning.

How to Save the Spark of Life—A Set of Instructions Compiled and Issued by the New York Board of Health—Applicable and Useful Everywhere.

The following instructions for restoring persons overcome by heat and reviving those rescued from water have just been issued by the New York Board of Health:

SUNSTROKE.

Anyone overcome by the heat should be immediately removed to the nearest shade, and the collar of shirt or dress should be loosened. Send immediately for the nearest physician, and give the person cool drinks of water, black tea or coffee, if able to swallow.

If the skin is hot and dry, place the person in a sitting position against a tree, wall, or anything that will be a support to the back; sponge with or pour some cold water over the body and limbs, and apply ice to the head pounded ice wrapped in a towel or other cloth. If there be no ice at hand, keep a cold cloth on the head and pour cold water on it as well as on the body.

If the person is pale, very faint and pulseless, lay him down on the back, let him inhale ammonia for a few seconds, or give him a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia or tincture of ginger in a tablespoonful of water. Let no cold water upon the head nor body, but rub the hands and feet and apply warm applications to the same until the circulation is restored.

DROWNING.

1.—Loosen the clothing; place the face downward, with the forehead resting on one of the arms, and the face turned to one side. Open the mouth; seize the tongue between the fingers, covered with a handkerchief or piece of cloth, and draw it forward between the teeth; clear the mouth and throat from mucous by passing the forefinger, covered with a handkerchief or piece of cloth, far back into the mouth, thus opening a free passage to the windpipe.

2. Turn the body face upward, shoulders resting on a rolled coat or pillow; keep the tongue drawn forward; raise the arms backward and upward to the side of the head (this expands the chest and allows the air to enter the lungs); then slowly move them downward bending them at the elbows and pressing to the sides and the hands cross the pit of the stomach, and press them gently but strongly against the ribs and chest (this forces the air out of the lungs.) Continue these two movements (which produce artificial breathing) very carefully about ten or twelve times in a minute, and without ceasing, until the patient breathes naturally, or until satisfied that life is extinct.

3. While this is being done a little friction on the chest may be produced by rubbing with the hand, but the body may be stripped and wrapped in dry blankets.

After natural breathing begins continue very gently for a few minutes the two movements which produced artificial breathing.

After natural breathing is fully restored give the patient a teaspoonful of brandy, hot sling or tea, two or three times a minute, until the beating of the pulse can be felt at the wrist.

Rub the arms and legs upward, and the feet and hands with warm or dry flannels.

Apply hot clothes to the body, legs and arms, and bottles of hot water to the feet.

CAUTION.

1. Do not be discouraged if animation does not return in a few minutes. A person sometimes recovers after hours of labor.

2. Do not allow the tongue to fall back and close the windpipe while the arms are being worked.

3. Do not rub the legs and arms until natural breathing is restored.

4. Do not pour liquid in the mouth until natural breathing is fully restored.

5. Do not roll the body nor handle it roughly.

6. Do not allow the head to hang down.

A CELLULOID MIRROR.

For many years a popular superstition has found favor in the minds of many regarding the mischief-times which would follow a person breaking a mirror, but at last this fear, of ill-luck promises to become a thing of the past. The celluloid mirror is a new invention which should have a future. The manner of constructing it is as follows: A plate of transparent celluloid is coated with silver or other polished metal, over which another layer of opaque celluloid is placed, and a mirror is obtained which may be burned, but which will not be broken by an accidental fall. It is hoped that this invention may be applied with advantage to optical instruments of large dimensions, owing to the ductility of the substance, which permits of its taking any form with great ease than reflectors in metal, while possessing all the merits of the glass reflector.—House Furnishing Review.

A COLD MEAT MINCE.

Take 1 lb. of lean cooked meat, and chop it up very finely; soak a thick slice of bread in milk, and press the milk quite out when soaked; beat it out with a fork; add it to the meat, add mix all well together; add pepper and salt to taste; now beat up one egg, and mix it with the meat and bread. Have a nice deep pudding dish, and butter it well inside; cover the bottom and sides of dish with hard-boiled eggs cut and placed neatly; pour the mixture in and bake one hour; turn out gently. Make a sauce thus: Put on the bones of the meat, broken up, to boil one or 2 pints, with an onion and a piece of carrot and turnip; fry an onion brown in 1-2 oz. butter or dripping; when very brown, sprinkle in 1 dessert-spoonful of flour, and stir till the flour is wet; now add 1-2 pint of the stock, 1 tablespoonful catsup, a little pepper and salt to taste; stir till it boils—it should not be too thick; strain this sauce round your meat, and serve hot.

TEA DRINKING

Said to Make Scotchmen Poor and Irishmen Crazy.

London, June 28.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Charles E. Vincent asked the Government how many regular troops, militia and volunteers were in readiness to be mobilized for local defences throughout the Empire. Mr. Sydney Buxton, Under Colonial Secretary, said the Government declined to supply any such information.

In the House of Commons to-day Sir George Russell asked if, in view of the murder of President Carnot and other crimes committed by anarchists, the Government intended to act in concert with other powers in taking means to prevent further outrages.

Sir William Harcourt said the question was much too important to be answered now.

Mr. Stanley Leigh asked Mr. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, if the Government had given any attention to the special report showing the increase of insanity in Ireland from the habit of tea drinking.

Mr. Morley said he had seen the report, which alleged that the affliction was due to the excessive use of infused tea, which led to despondency, restlessness and insomnia, and finally resulted in insanity.

Mr. Leighton asked: "Then why not increase the duty on tea?"

Mr. Morley said it could hardly be expected that the Government, upon a conjectural statement, could increase the duty.

Mr. Leighton—"Is not excessive tea drinking also mentioned in the report concerning the increase of destitution among the employed in Scotland?"

Mr. Morley—"I must confine myself entirely to Ireland." (Laughter.)

SANTO, THE PARRICIDE.

The Assassin of Carnot Will Have an Ante-Mortem Lecture.

Santo will be tried on July 23 at Lyons, but the charge against him will be parricide, instead of murder. Article XIII. of the penal code decrees that an attempt against the head of the State is to be classed as parricide. When Santo has been condemned to death, and the hour of his execution has arrived, he will be conducted to the place of execution in his shirt, barefooted, and with his head covered by a black veil. The condemned man will stand on the scaffold while an officer of the law addresses the people, and refers to the enormity of the crime committed. Santo will then be decapitated by the guillotine.

MOVEMENTS OF MISSIONARIES.

Rev. Jonathan Goforth, who has been out in Honan, North China, as missionary for about six years, arrived in Toronto this morning with his wife and two children, on a year's furlough. Dr. and Mrs. McClure came in the same ship, but are staying for a short time in the Western States with friends in Dr. McClure. They will not be in this country for a week or two days. Dr. Malcolm's wife, in the Honan mission, has been down with the smallpox, but is now making rapid progress to words convalescence. Rev. Mr. Fraser Smith, of the same mission, is down with typhoid fever. The latest information is to the effect that he is recovering.

A BORN GENTLEMAN.

The small boy was at a table where his mother was not near to take care of him, and a lady next to him volunteered her services.

"Let me cut your steak for you," she said, "if I can cut it in the way you like it," she added with some degree of doubt.

"Thank you," he responded, accepting her courtesy; "I shall like it the way you cut it, even if you do not cut it the way I like it," and the lady actually reached over and kissed him.
