The Inquirer.

SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1860.

In our last issue we quoted a paragraph from the Montreal Commercial Advertiser, stating that important mineral discoveries have been made in the rear of this District, and that an exploring party is fitting out to make further search. We presume the statement is correct, though we have not been able to get any definite information either concerning the discoveries or the prospective exploration, as the facts concerning neither of them have yet transpired. That there are vast mineral treasures in those regions, however, is the opinion of persons who profess to be skilled in such matters.

That there is immense treasures lying a few miles north of Three Rivers, requiring nothing but enterprise and energy to develope, it is a fact, however, which does not depend upon the discovery of mineral deposits. It is well known that there is a large tract—almost an illimited extent of land admirably adapted to cultivation, which only requires to be opened up by suitable roads, and subdued by the strong arm of industry to furnish a comfortable subsistence and a home for thousands. Let these lands be surveyed and brought into the market on reasonable terms, and the requisite facilities for their settlement be provided by the Government, and it is not probable they will be long allowed to lie waste.

Hitherto the bane of this part of the country has been an undue dependance upon the Lumber and Timber trade. The land under cultivation has been divided and sub-divided, until in most cases the farms are mere patches, too small to admit anything like a regular and systematic rotation of crops; or any other of the modorn improvements in agricultural science. And the surplus population who could not find remunerative employment in the cultivation of the soil, instead of penetrating the forest, clearing land and making homes for themselves, have been in the habit of spending their winters in the woods lumbering and their summers in comparative idleness. In this way they have eked out a precarious and scanty subsistence for themselves and families, while they might have attained to a position of comparative independance if they had devoted themselves to clearing up and cultivating the land.

What effect the mining excitement will have either in accelerating or retarding the settlement of the country, is difficult to see at present. It may have the effect of stimulating agricultural pursuits by creating a larger demand for the fruits of the earth. At all events, it will have the effect of making the country better known; and if our own population will not avail themselves of the advantages which it preeents, it is to be hoped foreigners will be attracted to our shores who will possess the requisite energy and industry to turn the wilderness into a fruitful field. But on the other hand, it is possibie that if mining is carried on with any considerable success, it will engross the attention of the public as to lead to the neglect of those resources upon which the permanent prosperity of the country must depend, and without which her sons must ever continue to be hewers of wood and drawers of water for strangers. The prosperity of no country rests on a sound foundation which does not raise bread enough to the support of its own inhabitants.

These speculations may be premature as far as the mineral discoveries are concerned; but it is the soil,—about which there is no doubt—to which we would call special attention. We are anxious for the prosperity of our city; but we cannot hope to see this established upon a permanent foundation, until we see an extensive and prosperous settlement in the rear of it.

Since witing the above we have been shown specimens of Copper ore obtained about 26 miles north of this place. The extent and richness of the mine of course is not yet known; but the fact that Copper does exist there is put beyond doubt. The specimens before us are not it is true very rich, but they were found upon the surface, and as the quartz in which it is found exists in immense quantities, and as the exploration has scarcely commenced no doubts are entertained by those who are compe tent to form a judgment in such matters, that rich and productive veins will yet be discovered. It is said that the indicaticns on the surface are quite as promising as they were at the Acton mines which are yielding so largely. This discovery has been made on a property owned by T. Larue Esq., of this city, who we understand intends to commence mining operation on it in a short time.

THE TELEGRAPH AND THE PRESS.

There appears to be a somewhat serious dispute just now between the Press and the North American Telegraph Company. The latter has succeeded in securing the control of all, or nearly all, the Telegraph lines running from the Atlantic, and is therefore in a position to make its own terms with the public. In addition to a very high tariff, it has made an arrangement with an association of publishers known as the associated press, by which no one else can obtain the news brought by the European Steamers until this association which has its head quarters at New York has been served, and has actually been in possession of the news serveral hours. Canadian publishers are quite willing that reports of news brought by steamers bound for American ports should go to New York; but they regard it as a grievance that the news brought by our own Steamers should be in print in that city before it can be received at Quebec or Montreal Some invoke the interferance of the Legislature to correct this abuse and also to regulate the tariff of charges, while others look upon the establishment of rival lives as the only way of setting limits to the impositions of this monopoly Recently the enormous amount charged for reports has occasioned a breach between the Company and the Associated Press, and it is thought probable that except the former become more moderate in its demand, efforts will be made for the establishing of rival lines.

The following which we clip from the Montreal Witness is, not to speak of its utter truthlessness, about the meanest, most venomous and most villanous attack, upon a couple of public men we have ever met with in the entire range of our news paper reading:

"While many poor teachers get most wretched pittances, paid only after the expiration of the year, the two Superintendents of Education get $4,000 or perhaps $4,800 each—we suppose paid quarterly,—the one for doing little or nothing, and the other for devoting his time and talents to vilify and break down Toronto University.—Ed. Wit."

One of the general superintendents of education does little or nothing the other worse than nothing! The Rev. Dr. Ryerson, the gentleman against whom this rancorous paragraph is specially pointed, has during the period that he has filled his present office performed an amount of labour which perhaps no other man in the country could have performed; he has displayed a degree of energy, and devotion to his work which has won for him the admiration of friends and foes; and the success which he has acheived in establishing and carrying into successful operation one of the most perfect and efficient systems of popular education in the world—a system of which any country might well be proud—has laid Canada under an obligation to him which no amount of salary which he is likely to ever receive will be sufficient to discharge, and which will not fail to secure for his name a place among those of his country's chief benefactors. Dr. Ryerson can well afford to treat the venemous assault of the Witness with contempt: it can do him no harm; but it cannot fail to recoil with terrible effect upon the base and slanderous source from which it emenated. We envy not the heart that could dictate such a paragraph.

Blackwood's Magazine.—The June number of this able Monthly contains some very interesting articles. The following are the contents:—The Schoolmaster at Home. Night. Milton. Captain Speke's Adventures in Somali Land.—Part II. Norman Sinclair.—Part V. Scottish National Character. Domitian and the Turbot. Universal Suffrage in Savoy and Nice. The Fight for the Belt. The Balance of Party.

The Seigneurial tenure commissioners met at this city on Tuesday and Wednesday, for the revision of the Cadastres of the Seigneuries of Becancour, Nicolet, St. Pierre les Becquets and St. Anne the only Seigneuries in the District on which there were appeals. Their decision may be expected in about a month.

A boy of the name of Joseph Lemerise, between 13 to 14 years of age, was drowned on Wednesday afternoon. while bathing with several other children.

The Crops.—The Midge.—This morning, says the St. Catherine's Journal of the 30th ult., Samuel Woods, Esq., called at our office with a few heads of wheat, which outwardly appeared to be in a healthy and vigorous state, but on opening the chaff scarcely an entire kernel could be found in the head. The midge had destroyed the whole of them: around many of these grains as many as a dozen or more of the "grub" could be found. In some ears a hundred could be "shelled out." This wheat was from the field of Mr. G. Hindson, on the road between here and Port Dalhousie. It is Mr. Wood's opinion, as well as that of all old and experienced agriculturalists, that every variety of fall wheat, except the Mediterranean, in this and the adjoining County of Welland, will be destroyed by the midge. William Duck, Esq., also exhibited some of his wheat, which was equally as much destroyed as the other.

The Solar Eclipse.—The path of the centre of the Moon s shadow in this eclipse, it is stated, will cross that of the Cunard steamers, at the point whose latitude is 50 3-4 N., longitude 15 3-4 W., very nearly, or about 300 miles W. by S. of Cape Clear, Ireland; in which position or very near to it, the Europa, which leaves Boston on the the 11th, will probably be early in the afternoon of the 18th; so that her passengers may have the opportunity of beholding the most magnificent of all phenomena, a total eclipse of the Sun. The duration of the so called "total darkness" at the above place will be four minutes, and the width of the Moon's shadow, 100 miles or 50 to N.E. and also to the S.W. of the central line: throughout which space the Sun will be totally eclipsed.

General Walker Again.—The New Orleans Delta states that Gen. Walker the "gray eyed man of destiny," left that city a few days since with a number of emigrants in one of the small vessels plying between New Orleans and Ruatan, and that still another company of emigrants was to leave on the 13th ult. Captain Fayssoux remains in New Orleans as the agent of Gen. Walker fo the purpose of forwarding the emigration movement to Ruatan. These facts affords some slight interpretation of the opposition of the Bay Islanders to being transferred to the Hondurean Government, and it is not improbable that General Walker, in connecting himself with the revolutionary movement, is actuated as much by an ultimate design to re-establish his government in Nicaragua as to punish Guardiola, the present Governor of Honduras, so much detested by the Bay Islanders, and who was put in power by St. Salvador and Guatemala, the bitter enemies of Walker and Jurez Government in Nicaragua. The Government of Guardiola is an unmitigated despotism, and the people of Honduras are said to earnestly sympathize with the Bay Islanders in their resistance. The present movement is a very important one, even though it may only result in maintaining the freedom of the Bay Islanders and their superior commercial advantages. Gen. Walker has objects much further, but whether he will realise them is a question for the future. He is said to have abundant means at his command.

The inhabitants of Carroll County. Ohio, are very much excited by a male child, from seven to ten years old, that has been seen several times in the woods, but as yet has not been taken. It has approached children quietly, but flees from the approach of a man or woman. A place has been found where it had slept the preceeding night and had eaten a frog. Several hundred persons, regularly organized, are out on the hunt.

An Indian Lady on a London Platform.—The annual meeting of the Aborigines Protection Society was held in London, on Wednesday the 23rd, Mr. S. Gurney, M. P., in the chair. The proceedings had reference principally to the unjust treatment of the Kaffirs at the Cape, and the condition of the Indians of Canada and Hudson's Bay Territories. Mr. Robert Alston introduced an Indian lady to the meeting. He said the Canadian Indians were reputed minors in law, and therefore had no individual rights in the land; that they held it only under the different tribes, and that if the chieftains could be gained over the individual Indians had no personal redress. They were not permitted even to purchase land, except under the regulations—that the individual so holding land should profess the Christian faith, and should have attained to a certain amount of literary instruction. The Indians had remonstrated in vain, and at length their representatives resolved to depute one of their number as an Ambassador to Queen Victoria for the purpose of obtaining redress from their wrongs. The person chosen was the niece and adopted daughter of Peter Jones a native chieftain of the Chippewa tribe. Since her conversation to Christianity, through the instrumentality of the Wesleyans, she had assumed the name of Catherine Brown, and had married an Englishman of the name of Sutton. Nah nu-Vohive-Gun, the Indian Lady in question, then came forward and addressed the meeting in very good English. This she did in a very touching and plaintive manner. In tones low and tremulous, but remarkably clear and audible, she stated briefly the wrongs under which the "poor Indian" suffered at the hands of the "Indian department." "When the white people first went over they spoke to the poor Indians of their great mother, the Queen, and she had been sent over to make their grievances known to her. But she found it very heard to get near her great mother, and where the door was to see her she did not know. Then again she had been told that Queen Victoria had very lit e power. Whom to apply to she did not know. Her heart was drawn after her people, and though she might lose her home and her all, she could not quench the feeling in her breast. She had rather suffer with her people than enjoy the pleasures of this life. The address produced a marked affect upon the audience, and Mr. Gurney said he should be happy to do his best to aid their Indian friend in accomplishing the object she had in view in visiting this country.

England's Premier.—Lord Palmerston and the Earl of Derby having been seen chatting at Epsom in a friendly way, and arm in arm, gave rise to the report that they would go hand in hand in politics; indeed, it is difficult to understand that such fierce antagonists in the political arena should be able to fling off all enmity. Palmerston even went so far as to joke Derby and show him the last caricature in Punch, wherein Derby is seen jumping through a paper hoop at a riding circus, and coming down smack on his head—"Pam" is always joking. I told you in my last about Delaine, the editor of the Times, being received in so friendly a way by Palmerston, and that it has raised the ire of the Premier's foes. But his Lordship must have his bon mot at the expense of the affair; so the last thing in town attributed to Lord Palmerston is this conundrum—"Why are my dinners like Lady Palmerston's dresses? Because they are muzzling Delaine" (mousseline de laine;) and so also his chop-fallen colleague Gladstone, who has got them all into a muss, is made the subject of conundrum number two—"Why is Gladstane like lobster salad? Because he is very good, but disagrees with everybody." It is to this determination to be jolly which has made him what he is at his time of life.—London Corres. N.O. Delta.

The Japanese and the Great Eastern.—On their way out to the Niagara, the Japanese Embassy passed the Great Eastern. The docks, says a correspondent, were lined with vast crowds of spectators, the rigging of the shipping in the vicinity was filled with adventurous gazers, and the scene was one of exceeding interest. But the Japanese took on with that undisturbable apathy, that calm indifference, complete nonchalance, stoical complacency that would indicate to a common mind an irrevocable stupidity. They leaned lazily over the taffrail, gazed on the wonder of the world with a sleepy list lessness, and appeared as unmoved as if there were lots of Great Easterns to be seen every day in Japan, and as if she wasn't such a big ship after all. But, lest they might think too much of it after all, it was slily whispered to them that while the British vessel was bigger, the American Niagara was faster.

Robbing a Traveler.—On Saturday evening Mr. Joseph Neighlan, of Ottawa, while waiting for a train at the Newcastle Station of the Grand Trunk Railway, was robbed of his carpet-bag containing a quantity of clothing, a mortgage for £118, other valuable papers and $6 in money. Mr. Neighlan suspected a man named Charles Palmer, who had travelled with him from Peterboro', and mysteriously disappeared about the time the bag was missed. Neighlan came up to Toronto yesterday and gave information of the robbery to the police stating his suspicions as to the thief, and adding his belief that Palmer had taken the direction of this city. Constable Arnold immediately instituted an inquiry and found the stolen carpet-bag in Gardner's tavern near the Union station, where he was informed it had been left by a stranger. After waiting some time Palmer arrived at the house and the policeman forthwith took him into custody. He was at once brought up before Mr. Gurnett, who remanded him for examination to-day. A brace of pistols, a flute, a coat and $3 had been abstracted from the carpet-bag. Palmer is a young man of about nineteen years of age and an American by birth.—Leader.

Holloway's Pills.—There is no hazard in saying that the popularity of Professor Holloway's remedies in this country is without a paralled in our medical annals. The instances in which sick persons professionally condemned to death have recovered under the operation of his miracle-working Pills, are so numerous and so well authenticated, that the most stubborn incredulity is silenced. Hosts of dyspeptics and of persons afflicted with liver complaint, nervous debility, disorders of the bowels, epileptic fits, pulmonary diseases, and other internal distempers, have been cured by this unapproachable medicine since its introduction into this country. The press teems with the testimonials of the parties, and while we wonder we are compelled to believe.

A Good story is told of an old Scotch Highland minister, who did considerable business in the marriage line, much more so than the rest of his brethren, on account of the peculiar manner he went through the ceremony. After the usual questions and answers being given, he generally concluded with the following: "And for this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and the two shall become one beef."

Arrival of the PERSIA.

Boston, June 5.

The Persia arrived; brings dates to the 23rd.

No new movements in Sicily Neapolitans were concentrating their forces at Messina. Palermo completely evacuated. Garibaldi was forming twenty Regiments for operations on land. All Sicilian Communes petitioned for annexation to Piedmont.

Final Conference between the Prince of Prussia and the German Sovereigns was to have taken place at Baden.

The Paris Patrie states that Garibaldi is determined to attack Messina soon, and probably would march on that place on the 28th.

Provisions generally quiet and unchanged.

Ashes quiet—Pots 27s 6d to 29 3d; Pearls 30s 6d to 31s.

Sugar firm. Coffee quiet.

London.—Money higher and active Consols 94½ to 93⅞.

Turin, June 23.

Advices from Ravenna to the 22nd state that at Reid the Austrian Government compelled a Sardinian merchant to hoist the Pontifical flag. At Turin the harbour master refused the Steamer Revenue the papers necessary for departure because it had hoisted the Tri color flag.

The Paris Patrie of the 23rd states that Garibaldi held a Council of War on the evening of the 21st, at which it was decided that the insurrectional army after having collected all the necessary military forces, should march on Messina. The volunteers brought by Col. Medici had been chosen with great care amongst other Officers and Engineers. It was believed the march would commence on the 28th.

The Neapolitans are fortifying Messina and concentrating troops there, and considerable ammunition. They are in great force in Calabria.

The American vessels seized by the Neapolitans were the Charles and Jane, of Baltimore. The American Minister demanded passports for his son and two others, to visit the vessels at Gaeta.

Proceedings of the English Parliament unimportant. Lord John Russell, in acknowledging a French note relative to Savoy, again condemned the course of France.

About 30,000 volunteers were to be reviewed by the Queen on the day the steamer left.

The Prince of Wales embarks for Canada on the 11th of July
