Our New Story,

A FAIR MAIDEN'S NO,

Begins To-day.

BE SURE TO READ IT.

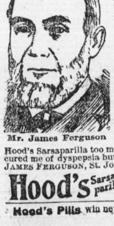
FOOD THAT DRIES THE MILK.

A good cow will not be hurt in her milking by any of the ordinary foods in use, if given in moderation. But there are cows that will rather turn their food into fat than into milk, and such cows may be tried by overfeeding such strong food as cornmeal or other grain. Bran will not be apt to dry a cow under any circumstances, and thus it is a safer food than meal for such cows as are apt to fatten when well fed. Every owner of cows should carefully test one to discover her character in this direction, for it is very true that a large proportion of cows kept do not pay for their feeding, and, of course, such cows are not profitable. More cows of this inferior kind for milk and butter will be found among the shorthorns and other breeds commonly fed for beef than among the special dairy breeds, as the Ayrshire, the Jersey, and the Holstein.

HIGH BRED DOGS UNINTELLIGENT.

With some advance in the organization of society the dog is ever losing something of his utility, even in the way of sport. He is fast becoming a mere idle favorite, prized for unimportant peculiarities of form. The effort in the main is not now to make creatures which can help in the employments of man, but to breed for show alone, demanding no more intelligence than is necessary to make the creature a well-behaved denizen of a house. The result is the institution of a wonderful variety in the size, shape and special peculiarities of different breeds and what appears to me to be a concomitant loss in their intelligence. It appears to me, in a word, that our treatment of this noble animal, where he is bred for ornament, is in effect degrading.—Shaler, in June Scribner.

Like a New Man



Mr. James Ferguson

"For five or six years I had Dyspepsia in its worst form, sometimes completely prostrated; so much that it was impossible for me to work more than half an hour at a time. I had tried various remedies but did not receive any benefit, when I was recommended by a druggist to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have taken two bottles and feel like a new man. I can eat and drink anything and enjoy my food. I never felt better. I cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla too much for not only has it cured me of dyspepsia but also of rheumatism."
