A CLEAN KNOCK-OUT.

The most gratifying feature of yesterday's victory is the emphatic condemnation that the organization known as the P. P. A. received in almost every part of the Province. Nowhere was the emphasis greater than in Hamilton and Brantford, cities that in January last were carried by the seductive appeals made to the prejudices of a certain section of Protestants.

Mere defeat would not have been sufficient. A clean knock-out was necessary, and this has been most emphatically given. The Protestant Protective Assiciation will never rise when "time" is called.

There is no necessity for the existence of a secret society for the protection of Protestantism in this Province. Throughout the Province Roman Catholics form but one-sixth of the population; in the county of Brant but one-twelfth. If occasion should ever exist for united action in defence of Protestant principles, the real leaders in the cause of evangelical religion may be expected to take it openly and above-board. There is no possible occasion for any set of men to band themselves together in secret society, or to turn baiters of Romanists in the name of the tolerant Nazarene. So far, it has not been made apparent that, in this Province at least, Romish aggression is anything more than a bogey with which to frighten the timid, the ignorant and the bigoted.

For the sake of Protestantism, for the sake of Canadian nationalism, there is cause for rejoicement that an enemy that threatened great danger to both has been signally vanquished. It will never again rear its head.—Brantford Expositor.

HOME! HOME! HOME!

A weary, worn and impatient mother and a cross, fretful baby . . . .

Are a combination fit to wreck the peace of any home and drive a man to distraction.

Such was the case of my friend Casper. I said, "Casper, go to Frank E. Walker's and get a baby carriage for the baby." He did so, and an outing every day for a week produced a magical effect on mother and child, making a happy, cheerful mother, and a cooing baby which is now the centre attraction of a happy home. Special sale of carriages now going on. All kinds of home furnishings. Lowest prices. Easy terms.
