It will mean greater activity and more independence in the Industrial Life of the country.

LIBERALS SHIRKED DUTY.

How the Liberal party with its loud protests for the good of the people has been tried and found wanting is written in the official files at Ottawa. There it can be seen that the late Government deliberately shirked its duty to inquire into the question of ocean freight rates though the British Government was willing to enter into negotiations. The Conservative opposition in 1910 time and again endeavored to have the Liberals take the matter up. There was some correspondence but the matter ended there. But the Conservative Government has now sent the Chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners to England to negotiate and a report will be made on his return. The late Mr. Justice Mabee, chairman of the Railway Board, and appointed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and a man who was respected and admired by all parties, suggested a scheme of joint control of rates.

His memorandum was forwarded to the Colonial Office by the then Government. The Imperial authorities at once fell in with the suggestion of a joint investigation, but the Canadian Government dropped the whole matter, neglecting even to reply to the communications forwarded on the subject by the Colonial Office.

The British Government is now and has been for some time ready to take the ocean freight rate question up with the Dominion Government. Records now on file here show this and furnish a complete refutation of the contention put by the Opposition last session that the rise in rates complained of at the time took place subsequent to the change of Government. The increase in rates was brought to the notice of the Laurier Government early in 1910. At that time merchants and boards of trade were complaining, and Mr. Richard Gregg, now commissioner of commerce, then resident British trade commissioner to Montreal, drew up a memorandum showing that the rates had materially risen and observing that this constituted an impairment of the British preference.

In February, 1912, the chairman of the Railway Commission, the late Judge Mabee, signed a vigorous memorandum, pointing out that if the control of land rates was beneficial to the public, the control of the ocean rates would be much more so, the land journey being only one-third of the distance. "Every reduction made on the land haul gives the ocean carrier the opportunity to add to his charges," said Judge Mabee.

The people of Canada were laying the foundation for more benefits than they ever imagined when they threw out the Liberal party on September 21, 1911. They elected a party devoted to their interests and able and willing to carry out the promises made in opposition.

LIBERAL LOSSES.

The Liberal leaders at Ottawa and many of their journalistic supporters overlook the lessons they should have learned from the history of their own party. Looking back on the long period of opposition which began with the first triumph of the National Policy in 1878, it is clear that many Liberals fell into the fatal error of perpetually preaching ruin, and of continually leaning towards Washington for their own political and the country's economic deliverance. By this ill-advised course they kept Liberalism in a state of impotence for nearly eighteen years.

From this slough of free trade and pro-Americanism the party was finally led in 1896 by the united and energetic efforts of a group of able men, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Oliver Mowat, Mr. Clifford Sifton, Mr. David Mills, Mr. Fielding and Mr. Blair. On the advice of his wiser lieutenants, Sir Wilfrid adopted the British attitude and virtually abandoned reciprocity. At the same time he gave the manufacturing and labor interests full assurance that the tariff would not be lowered to their injury.

As the Toronto News points out, the Government, then formed, showed considerable strength and wisdom. In adopting the well proved National Policy of Sir John MacDonald, varied only by the British preference which catered to Imperial sentiment on both sides of the Atlantic without lowering the average Canadian tariff more than one per cent in eighteen years. Sir Wilfrid Laurier even went so far as to turn his back on Washington and to say that his Government would not again approach th United States on the trade question.

As long as he pursued that course he was safe, but his strong men disappeared, his Cabinet began to show signs of weakness and bad judgment. There were no men to replace Mowat, Mills, Blair and Sifton. Round the end of the last decade both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding were obviously losing their grip. Instead of remaining responsive to the overwhelming Imperial sentiment of English speaking Canada they manifested an undue subservience to the Nationalists of Quebec. At the same time, led on by Mr. Fielding, the Liberal leader alarmed the true national sentiment of the country by abandoning his dignified attiture towards the United States and by, in fact, turning back into the old American trail, and entering into a trade arrangement which menaced the fiscal and perhaps in the long run even the political integrity of the Dominion.

As a result we had the decisive defeat of the Government in 1911 and ever since bye-elections and Provincial general elections have in the main showed progressive Liberal losses. Only two of the men who rescued the party in 1896 remain in the field. They are far spent, and the leading newspapers which support them are so out of touch with public sentiment that they still attack the National Policy and resist the movement towards closer Imperial unity. They still preach Free Trade, Reciprocity, and an extreme autonomy which, though they may not recognize it, leads towards separation from the Empire eventually. It is difficult to see how the fortunes of Liberalism can improve until it develops new leaders holding and putting into constant practice the convictions on basic National and Imperial questions so long held and lived by men like Sir Oliver Mowat, Alexander Mackenzie and Clifford Sifton.

SISTER CLARICE TO RETURN HERE

an application was received from Miss Katherine Haggarty (Sister Clarice), who filled the position from 1905 to 1911 with much satisfaction. The latter was accordingly appointed to fill the vacancy.

A letter was received before last evening meeting from the Secretary of the Board of Health officially informing the School Board that the Board of Health upon considering the facts elicited at the joint meeting of committees from both boards yesterday morning, had resolved, although they believed that the plumbing done on the York street school building was not altogether in conformity with provincial regulations, to ask for no alterations therein at present, inasmuch as the making of such would materially delay the opening of the school, but they would make a proviso that if changes were later found to be expedient they would require some to be made at the close of the school term next ensuing.

Dr. VanWart presided at the meeting of the Trustees last evening, and the other trustees present were Messrs. Sterling, Sharkey, Spurden, Lemont and Mrs. Lynch, together with Secretary Treasurer Sampson.

Suggests Maternity Branch For the Victoria Hospital

Four Rooms of New Annex to be Allocated for the Purpose ---Trustees Heard Suggestions at Monthly Meeting Yesterday---New Annex to Cost About $12,000.

The regular meeting of the Hospital Board was held yesterday with Mr. A. A. Sterling, president, in the chair. The other gentlemen present included His Worship the Mayor, Mr. McMurray, Mr. Clark, Mr. VanDine, Ald. Farrell, and Secretary Sampson.

The report of the Treasurer showed a large expenditure for July, while the receipts were hardly up to normal. The Matron reported forty patients treated in July. Among the donations received were a good supply of strawberries from Mrs. J. A. Morrison and an abundance of ice cream from Mr. Guy Morrison.

A letter from Mr. T. S. Wilkinson enclosed $25 from St. Ann's Church for hospital.

Ald. Everett asked that engine belonging to the Trustees be removed from pumping station. This was used for supplying Hospital with electricity under old arrangement. The Mayor and Ald. Farrell are authorized to sell same.

President Sterling said he received a letter from Mrs. W. T. Whitehead, written in Victoria, B. C., asking Trustees to provide for a maternity wing in the proposed new building. She thought $2,000 would be sufficient to add to expenditure, and the ladies' committee have now $1,000.

Architect Brodie was present and gave the Trustees many important points about the best way to change some of the suggested plans, and thus much valuable information was elicited.

Upon sugestion of the chairman Ald. Farrell was added to the building committee, and the opinion was generally expressed that four rooms should be allotted in the new building for a maternity branch of Hospital work.

The local improvement society having improved the grounds about the Hospital and placed them in such attractive condition, the Mayor and Mr. VanDine were apponited a committee to have the lawn properly trimmed and the grass at all times cut.

The building committee was asked to mature preliminary work by undertaking the erection of the new building by at once providing ways and means. It is believed the proposed new building will cost twelve thousand dollars.

On motion of Ald. Farrell, the Secretary will take steps to protect some parts of the X-ray plant from injury.

After passing a number of accounts the meeting adjourned.

STOCK MARKET QUOTATIONS TODAY

(By private wires of J. C. Mackintosh & Co., Brokers, Queen St., Fredericton.)

New York, Aug. 5.—The opening was active and strong, and increased interest was manifested in commission houses, the market's ability on Monday to withstand the effect of unfavorable corn crops news having produced a good effect on sentiment. U. S. Steel seemed to have resumed its place as a market leader, and dealings in it were on a large scale.

During the first half hour the market was active and strong with evidence of hurried covering of shorts in leading issues. Technical position seemed perfectly favorable from bull standpoint and there appeared to be an inclination to avail of it for a moderate upturn.
