NOTICE.

To Printers and Publishers in Canada.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the recent session of the Provincial Parliament, entitled: "An Act respecting certain duties of Customs," the duty heretofore imposed on printed Books, imported into this Province, is repealed, with the exceptions therein stated, and amongst others with the exception of the duty on school and other Books which now are or hereafter may be printed in this Province. Provided always that copies of such school or other books shall be deposited by the Printers or Publishers of the same, with the Customs Branch of the Department of the Finance Minister.

Now the attention of Printers and Publishers of Books in Canada, is specially called to the Proviso of the above Act, in order that they may, forthwith, transit to this Department two copies of such school and other Books, as may have been printed in this Province, at their respective printing establishments, in order that the provisions of the above cited Act may be carried out.

R. S. M. BOUCHETTE,
Commissioner of Customs

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY Co. OF CANADA.

NOTICE is hereby given to the holders of such Shares in the late St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railroad Company, the Quebec and Richmond Railroad Company, and the Toronto and Guelph Railroad Company, as have been converted into Consolidated Stock of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, that the INTEREST for the half-year ending 31st December, on such of the said consolidated Stock held in Canada, will be paid, at the office of the Company in Montreal, on and after the 25th day of February instant. The said Interest will be paid in the Seven per Cent Debentures of the Company, having fifteen years to run from date of first issue, and bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent from 1st January, 1860, payable half-yearly.

In case the interest due to any proprietor shall be less than £100, a Scrip Certificate for the amount due will be issued, bearing interest as above.

Subsequently on presentation to the undersigned of a sufficient number of Certificates to represent £100 Stg., a Seven per Cent Debenture of the Company for that amount will be given in exchange therefor.

The interest on the Consolidated Stock of the Company held in England will be paid in same manner, in London, at the office of the Company, 21 Old Broad street.

N. B.—The Certificates of the Shares in the above named Companies not yet exchanged must be forwarded to this office, and exchanged for Certificates of Consolidated Stock, as no payment of interest will be made until such Share Certificates shall be deposited with the Company, and converted into the "Consolidated Stock of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada," as decided at a General Meeting of the Shareholders.

By order,
W. H. A. DAVIES.

MOTHERS
Thousands are daily speaking in the praise of
INFANTILE CORDIAL,
and why? because it never fails to afford instantaneous relief when given in time It acts as if by magic, and one trial alone will convince you that what we say is true. It contains
NO PAREGORIC OR OPIATE
of any kind, and therefore relieves by removing the sufferings of your child, instead of by deadening its sensibilities. For this reason it commends itself as the only reliable preparation now known for Children Teething, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Griping in the Bowels, Acidity of the Stomach, Wind, Cold in the Head, and Croup, also for softening the gums, reducing inflamation, regulating the Bowels, and relieving pain. it has no equal—being an anti spasmodic it is used with unfailing success in all cases of CONVULSION OR OTHER FITS. As you value the life and health of your children and wish to save them from those sad and blighting consequences which are certain to result from the use of narcotics of which other remedies for Infantile Complaints are composed, take none but Dr. Eaton's INFANTILE CORDIAL, this you can rely upon It is perfectly harmless, and cannot injure the most delicate infant. Price 25 cents. Full directions accompany each bottle Prepared by

BLOOD FOOD
Healthy human Blood upon being ANALYZED
always presents us with the same essential elements, and gives of course the TRUE STANDARD. Analyze the Blood of a person suffering from Consumption, LiverComplaint, Dyspepsia, Scrofula. &c., and we find in every instance certain deficiencies in the red globule of the blood Supply these deficiencies, and you are made well. The BLOOD FOOD is founded upon this Theory—hence its astonishing success There are Five Preparations
adapted to the deficiencies of the Blood in different diseases. For Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, or any affection whatever of the Throat or Lungs inducing Consumption, use No. 1, which is also the No. for Depression of Spirits, Loss of Appetite, and for all Chronic Complaints arising from Over-use, General Debility, and Nervous Prostration. No. 2, for Liver Complaints. No. 3, for Dyspepsia. Being already prepared for absorption it is Taken by Drops and carried immediately into the circulation, so that what you gain you retain. The No. 4, is for Female Irregularities, Hysteria, Weaknesses, &c. See special directions for this. For Salt Rheum, Eruptions, Scrofulous, Kidney and Bladder Complaints, take No. 5. In all cases the directions must be strictly followed. Price of the BLOOD FOOD $1 per Bottle.

COSMOPOLITAN ART JOURNAL.
THE COSMOPOLITAN ART ASSOCIATION was organised June 1854, and is designed to encourage and popularize the Fine Arts and Literature. It is under the supervision of a council of members, whose servises are honorary, and who receive no compensation.
To accomplish a truly national object uniting great public good with private gratification, at small individual expense, in a manner best suited to the wants, habits and tastes of the people the Directory has adopted the following plan:
Any person may become a Member by the payment of three dollars.
The money thus obtained (after paying necessary expenses) is applied:
FIRST, To the production of a large and costly Steel Engraving, a copy of which is furnished to each subscriber.
SECOND: To the purchase of Paintings Sculpture, &c., to be given to Subscribers, and to the publishing of the Cosmopolitan Art Journal, which is also furnished to Members gratuitously throughout the year
THIRD: To a free admission for a season of two months to the Art Galleries of the Association.
The great success attending the Association during the past five years, has made it universally popular wherever its plans and objects are known; enabling, as it does, all classes to make their homes attractive by the aid of Sculpture, Painting, Literature, &c.
The Subscription Books of the Cosmopolitan are now open, and subscriptions are daily being received in a ratio unparalleled with that of any previous year.
The collection of works of Art to be given to Subscribers exceeds in number and value that of any year since the founding of the Association.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE SIXTH YEAR:
Each Subscriber of Three Dollars will receive, First: The superb Steel Engraving, "Shakspeare and his Friends." Second: A copy of the elegantly illustrated Art Journal One Year. Third: A free Season Admission to the Galleries, 548, Broadway, New York.
In addition to which, several hundred valuable works of Art will be given to Subscribers, comprising choice Paintings, Sculptures, Outlines, &c., by the first American and Foreign Artists.
The beautiful Engraving, which every Subscriber will receive, entitled "Shakspeare and his Friends," is of a character to give unqualified pleasure and satisfaction. No work of equal value was ever before placed within reach of the people at such a price. It is of very large size, being printed on heavy plate paper, 30 by 38 inches making a most superb ornament, suitable for either the walls of the parlor, library, or office.
It will be sent to ever Subscriber immediately on receipt of their subscription.
The Engraving is sent to any part of the country by mail, with safety, being packed in a cylinder, postage pre-paid.
Subscriptions for the sixth year will be received until the Evening of Tuesday, the 31st January, 1860, at which time the books will close, and the works of Art described in the Supplement, will be given to Subscribers.
No person is restricted to a single Subscription. Those remitting $15 are entitled to six memberships.
Subscriptions from California, the Canadas, and all foreign provinces, must be $3 50 instead of $3, in order to defray extra postage, &c. Persons wishing to form Clubs should send for a circular of terms, &c
Address, C. L. DERBY, Actuary, C.A.A., 546 and 548, Broadway, New York.

$10 Reward

THE above Reward is offered to any person who will give information which will lead to the discovery and conviction of the party or parties who mutilates and carries off the papers from the Reading Tables of the Mechanics Institute.

The Portent.

II.—"THE OMEN COMING ON."

But while I hesitated, Nature had her own way, and Lady Alice opened her eyes with a deep drawn sigh. Never shall I forget the look of mingled bewilderment, alarm, and shame, with which her great dark eyes met mine. In a moment her expression changed to anger. Her eyes flashed; a cloud of roseate wrath grew in her face, till it glowed with the opaque red of a camelia; and she all but started from the couch to her feet. Apparently, however, she discovered the unsuitableness of her dress, for she checked her impetuosity, and remained leaning on her elbow. After a moment's pause, in which, overcome by her anger, her beauty, and my own confusion, I knelt before her, unable to speak, or to withdraw my eye from hers, she began to question me like a queen, and I to reply like a culprit.

"How did I come here?"

"I carried you."

"Then, with a curling lip—

"Where did you find me, pray?"

"Somewhere in the old house, in a long corridor."

"What right had you to be there."

"I heard a cry, and was compelled to go to it."

"'Tis impossible. I see. Your prying and my infirmity have brought this disgrace upon me."

She burst into tears. Then, anger reviving, she went on through her sobs:

"Why did you not leave me where I suppose I fell? You had done enough to injure me by discovering my weakness, without rudely breaking my trance, and after that, taking advantage of the consequences to bring me here."

Now I found words. "Lady Alice, how could I leave you lying in the moonlight? Before the sun rose, the terrible moon might have distorted your beautiful face."

"Be silent, sir. What have you to do with my face?"

"And the wind, Lady Alice, was blowing through the corridor windows, keen and cold, as if it were sister-spirit of the keen and cold moonlight. How could I leave you?"

"You could have called assistance."

"I knew not whom I should rouse, if any one. And forgive me, Lady Alice, if I erred in thinking you would rather command the silence of a gentleman to whom an evil accident had revealed your secret, than be exposed to the domestics whom a call for help might have gathered round us."

She half raised herself again, in anger.

"A secret with you sir?"

"But, besides, Lady Alice," I cried, springing to my feet, in distress, "I heard the horse with the clanking shoe, and I caught you up in terror and fled with you, almost before I knew what I did. And I hear it now—I hear it now!"

The angry glow faded from her face, and the paleness grew almost ghastly with dismay.

"Do you hear it?" she said, throwing back the coverings I had laid over her, and rising from the couch. "I do not."

She stood listening, with wide distended eyes, as if they were the gates by which such sounds could enter.

"I do not hear it," she said, after a pause; "it must be gone now." Then turning towards me, she laid her hand on my arm, and looked at me. Her black hair, disordered and entangled, wandered all over her white robe down to her knees. Her face was paler than ever, and she fixed her dark eyes on mine, so wide open that I could see the white all round the unusually large iris.

"Did you hear it? No one ever heard it before but me. I must forgive you—you could not help it. I will trust you too. Help me to my room.

Without a word of reply, I took my plaid and wrapped it about her; prevailed upon her to put on a pair of slippers which I had never worn; and, opening the doors, led her out of the room, aided by the light of my bedroom candle.

"How is this? Why do you take me this way? I do not know this part of the house in the least."

"This is the way I brought you in, Lady Alice; and I can promise to find your way no farther than to the spot where I found you. Indeed, I shall have some difficulty even in that, for I groped my way there for the first time this night or morning—whichever it may be."

"It is past midnight, but not morning yet," she replied; "I always know by my sensations. But there is another way from your room, of course?"

"There is; but we should have to pass the housekeeper's door, and she sleeps but lightly."

"Are we near the housekeeper's room? Perhaps I could walk alone. I fear it would surprise none of the household to see, or even meet me. They would say—'It is only Lady Alice.' Yet I cannot tell how I shrink from being seen by them. No—I will try the way I came, if you do not mind accompanying me."

The conversation passed between us in hurried words, and in a low tone. It was scarcely finished when we found ourselves at the foot of the staircase. Lady Alice trembled a good deal, and drew my plaid close around her. We ascended, and with little difficulty found the corridor. When we left it, she was, as I had expected, rather be wildered as to the right direction; but at last, after looking into several of the rooms, empty all, except for stray articles of ancient furniture, she said, as she entered one, and taking the candle out of my hand, held it above her head—

"Ah, yes! I am right at last; this is the haunted room: I know my way now."

By the dim light I caught only a darkling glimpse of a large room, apparently quite furnished; but how, except from the general feeling of antiquity and mustiness, I could not tell. Little did I think then what memories—sorrowful and old now as the ghosts that along with them haunt that old chamber, but no more faded than they—would ere long find their being and take their abode in that ancient room, to forsake it never, never more—the ghosts and the memories flitting together through the spectral moonlight, and weaving strange mystic dances in and out of the storied windows and the tapestried walls. At the door of this room she expressed her wish to leave me, asking me to follow to the spot where she should put down the light, that I might take it back; adding—"I hope you are not afraid of being left so near the haunted room." Then, with a smile that made me strong enough to meet all the ghosts in or out of Hades, she turned, went on a few paces, and disappeared. The light, however, remained; and, advancing, I found the candle, with my plaid and slippers, deposited on the third or fourth step down a short flight, in a passage at right angles to that she left. I took them up, made my way back to my room, lay down on the couch on which she had lain so shortly before, and neither went to bed nor slept that night. Before the morning I had fully entered that phase of individual development commonly called love; of which the real nature is as great a mystery to me now, as at any period previous to its evolution in myself.

Lockjaw.—The following very remarkable cure of a case of traumatic lockjaw is reported by the Abeille Medicale:—A poor woman at Verneuil (Eure) was knocked down about six weeks ago by the fall of a chimney which caused a severe wound on her head, and a double fracture of one of her legs. She was gradually recovering from the effects of the accident, when suddenly, three weeks after, she felt violent pains in her limb: and soon afterwards all the most terrible symptoms of lockjaw manifested themselves. For two days not a particle of either food or drink could be administered; opium, balladonna, and musk were tried without effect. At length Dr. Pescheux resolved to have recourse to a novel method, viz., injecting a solution of one part of sulphate of atropine in 100 parts of water; the point selected for this injection was the nape of the neck, at the passage of the the spinal apophyses. The patient was attacked with the usual symptoms of intoxication by atropine, such as delirium, hallucinations, &c., for the space of 12 hours; at the expiration of which she appeared considerably relieved. A second injection was effected 24 hours later, when the symptoms of intoxication proved slighter, and a complete cure of the principal affection was obtained.
